

AT THE COURT MARTIAL

TESTIMONY OF THE MAN WHO TOOK THE MISSING RIFLE.

H. G. Rhodes Sealed the Likeliest Street Fence and Removed

In the court martial proceedings last night, after Captain Camara and Private Smith had testified for the defense, H. G. Rhodes, the superintendent of the government nursery, was put on the stand. He testified that he had formerly been an enlisted member of Company E, specially detailed by the President for detective duty, and was familiar with the guns and everything connected with them. The last time he had entered the Executive building was at 10:15 on the night of May 15th last, when he went in to demonstrate to the commander-in-chief that the guns were unguarded. It was common talk on the street that such was the case. On that occasion he had climbed the fence on the Likeliest street side, where there were no sentries. After sealing the fence he went to the gauntlet and examined all the guns. From the one on the Waikiki end he removed the breech block, intending to carry it to the President that night, but it was too heavy and he did not want to disable the gun. He then removed the sight, put it in his pocket and returned the way he came and afterwards sent it with a note addressed to President Dole or Minister Cooper through the post office. Had a conversation with Captain Good a few days afterwards during which Captain Good stated that the Colonel denied that the missing sight had been on the gun. Told him the Commander-in-Chief knew something about it and that he would probably hear more of it.

On cross-examination Mr. Rhodes testified his duties as a detective, showing that he had held a commission continuously since 1894. The reason he did not report to the Marshal in this case was because it concerned the military only. He acted entirely on his own responsibility in the matter. His attention was first called to the matter by overhearing a conversation between three strangers at Jim Dodd's corner, in which the defenseless condition of the guns was the topic. Did not report to the President immediately after taking the sight because he wanted to see if a guard would be placed over the guns after the sight was missed. Captain John Good then testified in his own behalf, explaining that the remarks made by him and testified to by witnesses for the prosecution bore reference to the extra work in target shooting and related only to shooting contests. He explained the "sailor drill" and gave reasons for his dislike to it. Acknowledged that on July 4th he had lost his temper after giving an order several times and had used the language testified to.

The balance of Captain Good's testimony related to the sight which Carlyle brought to him, the conversation had with Rhodes and the cause of the ill-feeling between him and Neely, Buchanan and Miller. His cross-examination will be commenced at this evening's session.

A Million Gold Dollars
Would not bring happiness to the person suffering with dyspepsia, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many thousands of cases of this disease. It tones the stomach, regulates the bowels and puts all the machinery of the system in good working order. It creates a good appetite and gives health, strength and happiness.

Hood's PILLS act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Cure all liver ills. 25 cents.

The Criterion Saloon is a pleasant place to go to and its greatest attraction is the pure, cold Seattle beer on draught there. It makes one's mustache curly and puts new life into the fading consumptive.
